

5       The invention relates to screening methods using nematode worms, particularly but not exclusively C. elegans, which are adapted to be performed in a high-throughput format.